

Part D: Read the sentences from Charlotte's Web. Write the correct underlined word after each definition.

1. In another hour or two, a steady stream of people would pass by, admiring it, and reading it, and looking at Wilbur, and marveling at the miracle.
2. Crate your pig, please, Mr. Zuckerman, and report to the judges' booth promptly!
3. The miracle has never been fully explained, although learned men have visited the Zuckerman pigpen to study and observe the phenomenon.
4. Templeton, asleep in the straw, heard the commotion and awoke.
5. It would serve you right if you had an acute attack of indigestion.
6. I don't feel good at all. I think I'm languishing, to tell you the truth.

- a. an event whose cause is in question _____
- b. confusion and chaos _____
- c. growing weak or feeble _____
- d. pain in the stomach due to difficulty digesting food _____
- e. with little or no delay _____
- f. being amazed or filled with wonder _____

Part E: Write a homophone for each word.

- | | |
|-------------|-------------|
| bee _____ | weak _____ |
| hare _____ | for _____ |
| groan _____ | pale _____ |
| seas _____ | buy _____ |
| hour _____ | pause _____ |

Part F: Draw a picture of how you would design Wilbur's medal.